1 pending the Court's resolution of MLBAM's dispositive Motion to Dismiss Counter-claims and 2 Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff's Claims, filed today.

3 This motion is supported by the Declaration of Mary K. Braza, filed herewith, and 4 by the points and authorities set out below.

5 Introduction

6 Defendant MLB Advanced Media, L.P., asks the Court for a protective order
7 staying all discovery in this action until this Court has ruled on MLBAM's Motion to Dismiss 8 Counterclaims and Motion to Dismiss RealNetworks' Claims which, if granted, would dispose of 9 the entire case.

10 FACTS AND BACKGROUND

11 Pursuant to the Court's Order Setting the Trial Date and Related Dates, discovery
12 is to be completed in this case by September 1, 2004. During the last two weeks of August, both 13 parties are set to engage in expensive and lengthy discovery matters. Depositions of party
14 witnesses are presently scheduled for 5 or 6 days in Seattle and 2 or 3 days in New York.
15 Plaintiff has also noticed and subpoenaed depositions of third-party witnesses for the same
16 period. Witnesses are clearing time for preparation and testimony while lawyers are scheduling 17 extensive travel, preparation and deposition time. In addition, the parties are currently trying to 18 resolve disputes relating to discovery responses to interrogatories and requests for the production
19 of documents. Proceeding with discovery during the last two weeks of August will increase 20 litigation costs and expenses dramatically for each side.

21 As certified in the attached declaration: MLBAM has conferred in good faith with 22 RealNetworks and has requested that RealNetworks join in a motion to the Court to extend the 23 September 1, 2004, discovery deadline in order to allow further opportunity for meaningful 24 exploration of settlement without the expense, effort and distraction of extensive discovery, but 25 RealNetworks has refused. (Braza Decl. ¶¶ 2, 15.) The motions for dismissal that MLBAM filed

1 today, upon which this request for a protective order and stay of discovery is based, are grounded
 2 in part on jurisdictional defects of which RealNetworks has long been aware (see Braza Decl. ¶ 3
 3 and referenced pleadings) but has failed to address, even though RealNetworks plans to proceed
 4 with discovery under the jurisdiction of this Court. When RealNetworks revealed on August 9 in 5 its expert “disclosure” that not only did it lack jurisdiction for its claims, but it lacked a damages
 6 case as well, MLBAM realized that a motion to dismiss and a companion motion for protective 7 order to stay discovery were warranted.

8 In order to prevent what could be the unnecessary expenditure of time and money
 9 by the parties and by third-parties, MLBAM asks the Court for a protective order staying 10 discovery until the Court rules on MLBAM’s pending Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims and 11 Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff’s Claims.

12 ARGUMENT

13 A district court possesses broad discretion in discovery matters. Sempier v.
 14 Johnson & Higgins, 45 F.3d 724, 734 (3d Cir. 1995) (stating that “district courts have broad 15 discretion to manage discovery”); Panola Land Buyers Ass’n v. Shuman, 762 F.2d 1550 (11th
 16 Cir. 1985) (stating that a court has broad discretion to stay discovery pending a decision on a
 17 dispositive motion); Rodgers v. United States Steel Corp., 536 F.2d 1001, 1006 (3d Cir. 1976) 18 (“Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(c), which governs protective orders, reposes broad 19 discretion in the district court to issue a variety of orders for the protection of the parties . . . in 20 the discovery process.”) Under circumstances similar to those presented here, courts have found 21 a stay of discovery pending resolution of a dispositive motion with the potential to put an end to 22 the litigation to be a proper exercise of that discretion. For example, in Scroggins v. Air Cargo,
 23 Inc., 534 F.2d 1124, 1133 (5th Cir. 1976), the district court stayed general discovery pending 24 resolution of defendant’s summary judgment motion, noting that “we see no possible abuse of 25 discretion in the order staying general discovery until the court could determine whether the case

1 would be resolved at the summary judgment stage.” See also Ingram Corp. v. J. Ray McDermott
2 & Co., 698 F.2d 1295, 1304 (5th Cir. 1983) (finding that a decision to prevent unnecessary
3 discovery because the case could well be decided on the parties' motions is not unfair to a party
4 desiring discovery.) The reasons for staying discovery in this matter are even more compelling 5 given that MLBAM's pending motion to dismiss addresses the lack of jurisdiction for 6 RealNetworks' claims.

7 It is clear that nothing learned through the pending discovery would affect the 8 outcome of MLBAM's pending motion to dismiss. The motion to dismiss is based entirely on 9 the pleadings and short supplemental declarations on the jurisdictional facts, which are a matter 10 of record and which go only to the citizenship of the parties.

11 Not only will a stay save the parties the time and expense of discovery that might 12 be pointless, no prejudice or undue delay will arise from such a stay. As in Scroggins,
13 MLBAM's motion, if granted, will dispose of the entire case. Should the Court deny MLBAM's 14 motion to dismiss, a new discovery deadline can be set and discovery can be completed easily in 15 advance of the next deadline on the Court's calendar, the February 21, 2005, dispositive motion 16 deadline.

17 Proceeding with discovery while the motion to dismiss is pending would 18 unnecessarily drain the parties' resources. The circumstances here are precisely those in which a 19 stay of discovery pending resolution of the dispositive motion is a proper and sensible exercise of 20 discretion. Given the strength of the dispositive motion and also the breadth of the discovery and 21 the burden of proceeding with such discovery, MLBAM's motion for a protective order staying 22 discovery should be granted.

23 CONCLUSION

24 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should grant MLBAM's Motion for 25 Protective Order Staying Discovery.
